

CALL FOR ABSTRACTS

Physical Stresses: Keeping Us “Alive and Well”

An Interdisciplinary Research Symposium sponsored in part by Presbyterian Health Foundation

- WHO Basic scientists, clinical scientists, participatory scientists, clinicians, graduate students and post-doctoral fellows, and interested members of the Community
- WHAT Mechanotransduction ... and the link to effective management of musculoskeletal conditions commonly seen in rehabilitation and medicine
- WHEN Friday, February 9, 2018
- WHERE The University of Oklahoma Health Sciences Center, College of Allied Health, 1200 N Stonewall Ave, Oklahoma City OK 73117
- WHY To present cutting-edge research and better communicate among researchers, educators, clinicians, and interested members in the community to benefit all, i.e., patients’ musculoskeletal wellbeing and performance, excellence in health care, and enhancement in research funding
- HOW Submit abstract no later than 11:59 p.m., October 15, 2017, using the link at the Abstract Submission Web Page

Peer Review and Ranking of Best Presentation Awards and Best Poster Awards in Basic/Applied, Clinical, and Participatory Areas of Research

Invited Keynote Speakers

- Christopher Powers, PT, PhD, FACSM, FAPTA
- Shawn Roll, PhD, OTR/L, RMSKS, FAOTA
- Vassilios Sikavitsas, PhD